Introduction

WORDS OF THE HOST PARTNERS

As part of the 22nd edition of Cratère Surfaces - Ales International Outdoor Festival, a set of joint events are being organised from June 29 to July 3rd 2021, hosted by le Cratère, Scène Nationale d'Alès: a Focus "Territories and Arts", led by the Institut français, the General Meeting of Circostrada Network, coordinated by Artcena, and the Plenary of the European and international projects Collaborative, initiated by Occitanie en scène.

All co-organisers have teamed up to create one single big event, to which we are more than happy to invite you. We have done our best to offer you a most relevant and appealing programme, which will have as a challenge to work through a territorial lens, creating artistic cooperation and common experiences of sharing sensitiveness and situations. This programme will bring together architects, artists, institutions, and personalities from various disciplinary fields. Together, we will reflect on spaces - urban and rural, that question and revisit imaginaries.

Institut français

The Institut français promotes French culture internationally, in dialogue with foreign cultures. It promotes initiatives related to various artistic fields, intellectual engagement, cultural and social innovation, and linguistic cooperation. It promotes the French language around the world, as well as the mobility of works of art, artists and ideas.

The Institut français is the public institution responsible for the international cultural actions of France, under the supervision of the Ministry of Europe and Foreign Affairs and the Ministry of Culture.

The Institut français in Paris works with the 131 cultural services of the French embassies, and the 98 Institut français headquarters with their 138 branches throughout the world (under the authority of the Ministry of Europe and Foreign Affairs) as well as the 27 French Research Institutes abroad (under the aegis of the MEAE and the CNRS).

Circostrada Network

Circostrada is the European Network for Circus and Street Arts. It was created in 2003 and counts over 120 members coming from more than 35 countries. Its core mission is to further the development, empowerment and recognition of these fields at European and international level. Over the years, it has become an anchoring point for its members and a key interlocutor in the dialogue with cultural policy makers across Europe. Circostrada supports circus and street arts professionals by implementing a wide-range of advocacy and capacity building initiatives. The focus is on boosting professional exchange and innovation, gathering information and resources, fostering continuous training and knowledge-sharing.

ARTCENA, National Centre for Circus, Street and Theatre Arts

ARTCENA supports professionals to pursue their projects and promotes circus, street and theatre arts.

ARTCENA realizes its mission along three axes:

- Sharing knowledge: digital platform and multimedia publications.

On artcena.fr, ARTCENA offers publications and multimedia resources that covers both the history and contemporary reality of circus, street arts and theatre : sector news, multimedia 'dossiers'...

- Professional support: training, guidance and national programs

ARTCENA develops tools and services for professionals and helps to support contemporary creation with its national programs: Aide à la création de textes dramatiques ('Support for Dramatic Writing'), the Grand Prix de Littérature dramatique ('Grand Prize for Dramatic Literature'), and the Grand Prix de Littérature dramatique Jeunesse ('Grand Prize for Dramatic Literature – Youth').

- International development of circus, street arts and theatre

ARTCENA coordinates Circostrada, the European Network for Circus and Street Arts and Contxto, International network for the distribution of French-language dramatic texts.

Le Cratère, scène nationale d'Alès

The scène nationale (a French network of 76 theatres) of Alès was created in 1991. Its new director, Denis Lafaurie, gave it the name of Le Cratère, referring to the fact that the room is below ground level, to the various craters found in the mines of the region and especially to this quote from the volcanologist Haroun Tazieff who said that "It is on the edge of craters that we see the most beautiful shows".

The Cratère can be considered as one of the most beautiful cultural facilities of the region, with its large theatre room containing 900 seats, its entirely modular room next door with 200 seats and its dance studio.

Every cultural season, it presents more than 60 multidisciplinary shows and 180 performances.

When creating Cratere Surfaces in 1999, le Cratere was one of the first scène nationale to create a street art festival.

Occitanie en scène

Occitanie en scène is the regional agency dedicated to performing arts. It aims to contribute to the artistic and cultural development from a territorial perspective. With view of making it a dynamic region for the creators who live there, and, the land of emergence of new artistic forms, through the lens of territorial cultural planning and reduction of inequalities of access to artistic creation. Occitanie en scène also carries out missions of information and resources, advice and support for artist profile scouting, artistic and professional mobility, and the development of cooperation and international projects. Its fields of action cover the entirety of disciplines under performing arts: circus, dance, music, theatre, and their associated and crossed forms. Occitanie en scène has initiated a Cooperative of European and international projects whose raison d'être is to foster the emergence of a regional platform of support for innovation and European and international cooperation.

CIRCOSTRADA GENERAL MEETING

Circostrada General Meetings can be regarded as the foundations of the network, in the sense that they are an ideal opportunity for the network's members to meet, exchange, share, think together, get to know each other better, discover an artistic landscape, explore topics relevant to their daily work-life, learn about the network's activities, experience what it actually means being a member... and so much more!

These meetings take place twice a year in a different European country and are hosted and co-organised by a Circostrada member in the frame of a festival or an artistic event.

They are always designed around a full and tailor-made programme that is specific to the local context of the organisation hosting it, but still deliver meaningful content for both circus and street arts professionals. A General Meeting at a glance is:

- A privileged sphere to learn about the life of the network, meet the Coordination team and Steering Committee, get to know new members and learn about what they do.
- A chance to discover the circus and street arts scene of the host country, learn about its cultural context, visit key venues and meet local stakeholders.
- An invitation to work with your peers, get involved in the network's activities.
- An occasion to increase your skills and refresh your perspectives by participating in inspiring keynotes, thematic workshops, projects presentations and peer-to-peer exchanges.

INSTITUT FRANÇAIS FOCUS

Focus is a major influence plan for artistic scouting to feed the programmes of prescribing foreign partners and to contribute to better distribution of French artists. Institut français organises the Focuses in partnership with unifying events in France or around partners which enlist the interest of foreign professionals.

They meet together for several days, around a dedicated artistic programme, professionals invited by the French cultural network abroad. Their aim is to facilitate identifying French cultural creation sectors and encourage their distribution in the world. They also enable professionals in a sector to be put in contact with each other.

CRATÈRE SURFACES

In July 1999, took place the 1st edition of Cratère Surfaces, the first festival devoted to street arts in the Languedoc-Roussillon region. Denis Lafaurie, the director of Le Cratère, scène nationale (the national scene) in Alès, decided to create an urban event bringing together artists and audience with free access to the heart of the city.

Since 2010, the festival has become international and has made its name as the "Alès international outdoor festival". It opens its doors to international companies and even offers shows in english. In 2014, the festival goes to the Cévennes for 3 days and makes us discover exceptional forms in remarkable landscapes, before rediscovering its urban euphoria in Alès, the last two days.

Eager to offer top-level entertainment, the festival is characterized by a strong artistic line-up, encouraging among others, theatre actors to take on the streets.

The festival attracts professionals from all over the world who often bring shows that they have discovered in Alès back to their own country.

PLENARY OF THE EUROPEAN AND INTERNATIONAL PROJECTS COOPERATIVE

The European and International Projects Cooperative is a regional platform initiated by Occitanie en scène, supporting innovation and European and international cooperation. It operates in the cultural and creative industries and more specifically in performing arts.

Through the dissemination of information and the support of territorial projects, Occitanie en scène carries out a collective and complementary action, in order to create the conditions for change and European openness to French actors and territories, particularly in the current context of strong transformations of European societies and territories.

Today, the question is to create the conditions for the emergence of cooperation and projects, that can be included in European frameworks.

In order to act, the European and International Projects Cooperative has a range of actions which include annual meetings as plenary sessions.

One of these two annual plenary sessions takes place here during the Cratère Surfaces festival, co-organised with the Institut français, Circostrada Network and Le Cratère, scène nationale d'Alès.

Opening keynote: "Soil, Fish, and Tourism: Art as Infrastructure"

Speaker: John Thackara

The European Commission promises a "Marshall Plan for tourism" - but with what aim? New values are shaping the development of our regions: attention to nature, a culture of hospitality, relationship with place. Art - which fosters attention, and relationship - has a literally vital role to play - but its contribution deserves better curation. The answer lies in cooperation platforms that enable art, science and design to collaborate. The most dynamic platforms - the talk includes examples - are small, light, and embedded in local institutions

Moderator: Margaux Darrieus

Speakers: Adelaïde Boëlle, Marta Jonville, François Rascalou, Aurèle Rattiez

How will we live together? Such is the question raised by Hashim Sarkis, General Commissioner of the Venice Architecture Biennale for the 2021 edition. We hereby suggest, through the apostrophe 'Living together' to move beyond the future-oriented dimension of the issue, to focus on the present and illustrate it with deeds, words, concrete and committed manifestos, already laying down collective action as a prerequisite. Roundtable #2 "Unsuspected resources"

Moderator: Margaux Darrieus

Speakers: Thierry Boutonnier, Miguel Georgieff, Anne Legile, Fred Sancère

This roundtable tackles the unsuspected potentials of built spaces and natural landscapes which are in abeyance, on hold, sometimes degraded, impoverished in appearance. This roundtable also focuses on the issue of mediation and the specific tools necessary to its design and dissemination. It will also address the diversity of spaces, be it a pavement, a ground floor, a path, a yard, a building, a shoreline, a city...questioned by the vision of residents and the provision of a collaborative toolbox.

Roundtable #3 "Bottom-up urban planning"

Moderator: Dimitra Kanellopoulou

Speakers: Joanne Pouzenc, Julie Sicault-Maillé, Théo Mouzard, Elisa Dumay

This roundtable aims to readdress the issue of city making models and the way of considering the territory, both in terms of tools and temporality. It is an opportunity to cross the different schemes experimented in France, with a view to prompting discussion on three cross-cutting ideas linked to bottom-up urban planning: time, availability and democracy. What are the limits and pitfalls of a concept which has been arousing much interest among the project's stakeholders in the last few years? What lessons can be learned from the experiences carried out in France regarding land management, the wide array of players involved and what are the limits of the exercise? What are the possible pathways towards developing or achieving more sustainable operations, faced with the emergence of new modes of governance and the growing complexity of access to resources (social, economic)? Such are the issues that this roundtable proposes to debate as a springboard to launch dialogue around a new way of thinking the city and to question it through artistic, architectural and hybrid practices.

Roundtable #4 "Territories with weakened ecosystems"

Moderator: Dimitra Kanellopoulou

Speakers: Sophie Dulau, Eleférios Kechagioglou, Maud Le Floc'h, Elsa Vanzande

This roundtable aims to explore and debate the weakening of continental and aquatic ecosystems. It deals with investigating the future of territories subject to climate, geological, industrial risks and to discuss the Anthropocene concept in the light of the current social and economic crisis. How can we cope with the risk and its consequences in our daily environment? How can we live with this risk, be it natural, industrial, sanitary or ecological? How can we overcome it and turn it into a source of projects and reflections for the urban or rural areas, through hybrid approaches standing at the crossroads of disciplines? How is resilience built up and using which tools? This roundtable will seek to shed light on these issues.

The sharing of initiatives and experiments put forward by the invited professionals will enable further deepening of the topic of resilience, focusing on the issues of adaptability, memory and water cycle.
